Bringing Hadestown to life has been an honour. This is one of my favourite shows, and guiding this cast through this production has been a privilege.

This piece demands more than talent. It asks for heart, storytelling, and trust. The world of Hadestown is raw and relentless. It's about love and loss, hope and sacrifice. The performers on this stage have embraced these themes with commitment and courage.

Musically, Hadestown is complex. The rhythms challenge. The harmonies demand precision. This cast has tackled every note with dedication. They have found the soul in the music and made it their own.

Movement in Hadestown is pure storytelling. Every step has purpose. The choreography is rooted in emotion. This cast has learned to move with intention, to let their bodies tell the story as much as their voices.

Theatre is collaboration. It takes a team. Thank you to the incredible theatre community at TheaCo for welcoming me into this space. A special thank you to Matthew Thiessen, Darren Hales, Karli Sawka, Arielle Ballance, and Amy Hughes for trusting me with this production. Your support has been invaluable.

This is not an easy show. The material is deep. The energy is relentless. The emotions are real. These young artists have met every challenge head-on. They have brought their own voices to this story and made it something unique.

Enjoy.
